SEXUAL HARASSMENT

The University of Missouri uses information, education and guidance to increase awareness of the problem of sexual harassment. It is the policy of the University of Missouri, in accord with providing a positive, discrimination-free environment, that sexual harassment in the work place or the educational environment is unacceptable conduct. Sexual harassment is subject to discipline, up to and including separation from the institution.

The definition of Sexual Harassment is defined for this policy as either:

· Unwelcome sexual advances or requests for sexual activity by a University employee in a position of power or authority to a University employee or a member of the student body.
· Other unwelcome verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature by a University employee or a member of the student body to a University employee or a member of the student body.

This happens when submission to, or rejection of, such conduct is used explicitly or implicitly as a condition for academic or employment decisions. The purpose or effect of such conduct is to interfere unreasonably with the work or academic performance of the person being harassed. The purpose or effect of such conduct to a reasonable person is to create an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment.

Non-Retaliation: This policy also prohibits retaliation against any person who brings an accusation of discrimination or sexual harassment or who assists with the investigation or resolution of sexual harassment. Notwithstanding this provision, the University may discipline an employee or student who has been determined to have brought an accusation of sexual harassment in bad faith.

To initiate a complaint or grievance within the time prescribed by the applicable grievance procedure, please contact the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs and Enrollment Management. Upon receiving an accusation of sexual harassment against a member of the faculty, staff or student body, the University will investigate, and if the accusation is substantiated, will initiate the appropriate disciplinary procedures. There is a five-year limitation period from the date of occurrence for filing a charge that may lead to discipline. An individual who makes an accusation of sexual harassment will be informed at the close of the investigation, whether or not disciplinary procedures will be initiated, and at the end of any disciplinary procedures, of the discipline imposed, if any.
TMC’s annual N-95 Fit Testing event will begin next week.

In conjunction with OSHA standards for respiratory protection, any TMC workforce member who is required, as part of their job description, and expected to enter into the airspace of or provide care to patients with suspect or confirmed airborne infections must be instructed annually in respirator mask use and fit tested to ensure adequate protection.

N-95 Particulate Respirator masks are used to protect healthcare personnel and support staff from inhaling small particles containing infectious organisms that can float in air currents when caring for patients with tuberculosis (TB), chicken pox, SARS, Avian Flu and other airborne infectious organisms.

The following is a schedule for this year’s annual testing. If you have questions, please contact Occupational Health at ext. 42770 or ext. 48730.

WELLNESS

Niloofar’s Weekly Wellness Tip

The Wellness Spectrum

Many of us are taught to think in binary terms. “Healthy” vs. “Unhealthy”. “Sick” vs. “Well”, “Happy” vs. “Sad”. It’s this type of thinking that causes so many of us to remain unconscious and unaware of the choices we make each day. We assume, wrongly, that as long as we show no symptoms of illness, we are well (False Wellness). But wellness is a spectrum. In the Wellness Model, you understand that every choice you make is either moving you toward health and wholeness, or toward illness and death. When you start to think in terms of this spectrum, ordering that Coke with your lunch, or sitting all day without taking any walking breaks, become conscious choices that you realize have either moved you right or left on the spectrum. Remember this visual, and start to notice, each time you make a choice, which side you just moved towards. Wellness is an active process...choose wisely!

NEXT MEETING!!!: Tuesday, April 14th, 2015 5:30PM, Gold 4 Conference Room

Wellness Initiative and Update!!!

This past October, I placed an announcement here in the In the Know seeking students interested in forming a Wellness Council and asked for ideas on how to promote Wellness at the SOM. I received lots of responses, and I’m happy to announce that we’ve already brought a few of those ideas to life and we are making good progress on some others.

Hospital Hill Carnival – This was an idea that a student emailed me. She suggested having a bounce house on the front lawn for a day to “feel like a kid again” and “relieve stress”. I brought this idea to the Hospital Hill Student Leadership Committee I serve on, whose aim is to bring together the 4 schools on Hospital Hill, and suggested the idea of making it a big event with several inflatables. They agreed and together with the Office of Student Involvement, we were able to bring this to life on April 1st. It seemed to be a big hit, and we plan on making this an annual event!

Quotes on the TVs – A few different students emailed me saying it would be nice to see inspiring and uplifting quotes on the TV screens. This was certainly a simple enough thing to do, so as of last Thursday, you will now see two quotes interspersed throughout the announcements on the TVs. The quotes will display all week long, and then two new quotes will replace them the following week. If you have any favorite quotes you’d like us to display send them my way!

Peer Mentors for Years 3-6 – Another idea I received from students, and which I’d heard several times before at focus groups I’d held, was the need for an expanded peer mentor program. I know as students, you often feel more comfortable opening up to fellow students or feel that only another student can truly relate to what you’re going through. For this reason, I’m currently working on expanding the Peer Mentor program to include Years 3-6 students. These students would have to meet our criteria and then complete some training, upon which their name, photo, and contact information would be added to a website and list of available mentors. Any student could feel free to contact any mentor at any time and the mentor would offer his or her advice and referrals. Some of you may have already marked “yes” on the box on the Student Ambassador Application that asked if you’d like to also apply to be a Year 3-6 Mentor. If this is you, you will be hearing from me soon. Anyone else interested, hang tight, and I will be putting out an announcement regarding applications soon.

Relaxation Space/MindBodyConnection – I know this is the #1 thing on many of your wish lists! The MindBodyConnection over at the Volker campus has grown increasingly popular with each passing year, and offers a massage chair, tea, bean bags, games, books, and a space to create crafts, solve puzzles, and just generally relax and de-stress. Creating a similar space at the SOM is a huge undertaking, in that it requires lots of funding, a physical space, and means of manning and maintaining that space. BUT, please know, that I’m well aware of this wish, and that I’m taking active steps to move toward creating a similar “oasis” for you here at the SOM.

If you feel passionate about any of the above causes or have other ideas for wellness initiatives here at the SOM, don’t hesitate to contact me at shahmohammadin@umkc.edu or attend our Wellness Council meetings, the second Tuesday of every month, at 5:30PM in the Gold 4 Conference Room. Open to all and there is pizza!!!
Choosing A Bank Or Credit Union That Fits Your Needs

Choosing a bank or credit union can be a difficult decision. Luckily, online resources provide information to help make your choice much easier.

Updated: February 19, 2015

What You’ll Learn

- Where to find up-to-date info on banks in your area.
- Why you should evaluate more than a bank’s financial offerings.
- How to handle an in-bank sales pitch.

Banks, like political persuasions and hairlines, are usually something we inherit from our parents and don’t really question until we get older. Now that you’re managing your own finances, you may be realizing your parents’ bank is not necessarily the right fit for you. But how do you go about choosing a new one?

Thankfully, it's easier than ever to compare banks and credit unions so you can find the right one for you. Here's a plan to help you go from the research phase to signing up.

Crunch The Numbers

The Internet is a pretty amazing research tool, but navigating every bank and credit union's website can be a serious challenge. Soon enough, you'll find yourself lost in the 73 tabs you have open, trying to compare the subtleties in what each institution has to offer. It is at this point that you should close your browser, open a new window, and head straight to a website like Bankrate.com or Findabetterbank.com. These websites are the property of third party organizations, and SALT™ does not officially endorse the information they provide.

Both of these sites make it easy to compare up-to-date information on all the banks in your area. Just type in your ZIP code, and you can compare checking and savings account options, credit card offers, and interest rates on loans. These websites have fairly comprehensive lists of services and requirements for individual banks, too.

For checking accounts, you can see how much money you'll need to open an account, what the monthly fees for having an account are, and what kind of surcharges you can expect from using an out-of-network ATM.
Of course, while these websites are a great resource, and will save you loads of time narrowing down the competition, it's best to use them as a guide only. Go with the bank or credit union's official website for the most complete information on the products and services they offer.

Do A Background Check

OK, you're now well versed on every bank and credit union that ever existed. You're a human pamphlet of financial information, and you know exactly which banking services you'd like to sign up for. It's time to get the inside scoop.

With websites like Yelp.com, you can look up the financial institution you're thinking of joining and see what people have to say about your local branch. It may seem obvious, but this kind of perspective can be really valuable—after all, these businesses will be your first port of call if you have any banking issues that need to be solved in person. Remember, this website is the property of third party organization, and SALT™ does not officially endorse the information it provides.

It can be worth paying a little extra for good customer service. Just remember, as with any user review-based website, it's important to take some of what you read on Yelp with a grain of salt. Some reviewers will have nothing but good things to say, while others will simply want to vent about their experiences. Try and look out for the most objective opinions.

Be Prepared For A Sales Pitch

When you're ready to sign up for your account, you may have the option to do so online or in person at your local branch. If you decide to do the latter, keep in mind that banks are for-profit businesses, and the customer service representative you speak with may attempt to upsell you a product or service you don't really need. That's OK—you've done your research, so just focus on what you came in for, and don't feel pressured to sign up for anything else.

At the same time, know that they're not necessarily out to swindle you, either. If they offer you some financial advice or they suggested a certain product or service that you're not interested in, there's no need to flip a table and walk out. You can always politely decline, or ask for some information to take home with you so you can make an informed decision at a later date. And of course, remember that unless you're signing a contract, you're not locking yourself into anything. If you're unhappy with the services your bank or credit union provides, take the time to look into other options—it will be worth it.

Public Health Volunteering Guide

Without volunteers to rely on, it is hard to imagine how the public health industry could fulfill its mission. The impact of volunteerism goes far beyond the doctors and nurses who volunteer their time and expertise to free clinics. Many people who want to help others do not need healthcare experience to support efforts like educating the public about health and safety issues, answering phones at clinics and health hotlines, or delivering meals to seniors.

As busy as life can be, it can seem hard to find the time to volunteer. This guide will help you gain an informed perspective on volunteering. For more information and to see the guide, visit:
